

Bourgeois Social Reformism – for the Nation and Race

Finnish social and health policy organisations as public policy actors and experts (1930s–1960s)

Sophy Bergenheim

Content

1. Introduction

I. POPULATION AND HEALTH

2. “The population question is, in short, a question of our people’s survival.”

The establishment of the Finnish Population and Family Welfare League and the construction of population policy problems in the 1940s

3. ‘People’s health’? The Public Health Association of Swedish Finland and the Finnish Population and Family Welfare League on public health and racial hygiene in the 1940s–1950s

4. Helping troubled children and cultivating the race. The Public Health Association of Swedish Finland and mental hygienic counselling in the 1930s–1950s

II. PLANNING

5. “Homes or barracks for our children?” The Finnish Population and Family Welfare League, housing policy and national planning in the 1940s–1950s

6. From regulation trauma to planning optimism. Visions of the future in the Finnish Social Policy Association in the 1950s–1960s

III. ASSOCIATIONS IN DIFFERENT OPERATING ENVIRONMENTS

7. Preserving the ‘welfare spirit’. The Finnish Federation for Social Welfare, social work and the public sector, 1947–1953

8. The Finnish Social Policy Association and the Finnish Federation for Social Welfare as international actors in the 1950s–1960s

9. Expert organisations as policy actors

10. Final words